7

Top User Tasks

Learn what Nibi Walks are

Users need to understand the fundamental nature of the walks, their purpose and origins, who provides leadership, and the proper framework for understanding them.

Understand whether this is for them and how they want to connect

Potential participants and spiritual supporters are discerning whether they are welcome, ready, and what form of participation would be appropriate for them.

Explore the history of the walks

Some visitors want to look back at past walks, previous routes, historical stories, and the broader record of the work over time.

Learn from the teachings and reflections connected to the walks

Users want access to reflections, stories, media, music, and teachings that deepen their understanding of the meaning and significance of the work.

Find trustworthy media and public-facing materials

Journalists, educators, and supporters need accurate language, proper context, bios, media assets, and approved framing to represent the walks correctly.

Buy supporting products or media

Some users want to purchase music or other items that connect them to the work or provide financial support through product sales.

Find accurate information about an upcoming walk

Visitors need concrete practical details including dates, locations, starting points, route information, timing, and any schedule changes.

Support the walk financially

Donors need clear information about how to give, what the current needs are, and how their financial support helps the work.

Understand IPTF's role and Fiscal Sponsor

Users need clarity about who is leading the work, how IPTF is involved in the walks, and how to speak accurately about the organizational structure.

Follow an active walk

Some users want real-time or near-real-time information about where walkers currently are, what is happening, and what support may be needed right now.

Offer material or logistical support

Some people want to help by providing food, housing, supplies, transportation, or local coordination assistance.

Prepare to participate well

People want practical guidance on how to show up prepared, what to expect during a walk, what to bring, which protocols matter, and how to act respectfully.

Participate from afar

People want to pray in connection with the walk, maintain spiritual connection to it, and participate meaningfully even when physical attendance is not possible.

Sign up for updates

Visitors want to receive updates about upcoming walks, current walks, needs, events, reflections, and other important news.

Share the walks appropriately

Supporters want to tell others about the walks, invite participation, or post on social media without misrepresenting the work or violating protocols.

Being able to submit photos from the walk

Stay connected between walks

Returning walkers and supporters want ongoing relationship, updates, and ways to remain engaged during off-season periods.